

Please keep the standards of decency high! Our society is deteriorating in terms of decency.

I am surprised by the vulgar language I hear in some current television shows, so I would be upset if it became worse. I enjoy times when a curse word is "bleeped out" because it allows me to use my creativity to figure out what they said. I don't want to hear the explicit words because it changes the spirit in my home. I try to keep a spirit of love and happiness, and certain words destroy it.

As far as nudity is concerned, non-sexual nudity is acceptable; however, I anticipate that some programs may claim that their sexual nudity is non-sexual nudity.

If the standards are going to be lowered, please keep the standards high during the time children might be watching!

I understand that there are decisions to be made regarding the backlog of indecency complaints. The best and easiest choice is one based on principles, and one of my principles is that the homes of America should be a place of good spirit. Please do not allow the filth of vulgarity to come into our homes!
